2004 SPRING FOOTBALL NOTES

OFFENSIVE LINE BATTLES

One of the most anticipated battles this spring will be for the five starting positions on the offensive line, despite the departure of only one starter from last season. Coaches will be watching the development and emergence of what is touted to be the best recruiting class of offensive linemen in school history. In 2003, the Illini signed five linemen who all have a chance to compete for a spot in this season's lineup.

Returning starters to the line are guards Matt Maddox and Bryan Koch, as well as center Duke Preston and right tackle Bucky Babcock.

Maddox, a sophomore, earned freshman All-America honors from Rivals.com and collegefootballnews.com last season for his solid performance at right guard. The other guard position was held by Koch until a neck injury sidelined him for the final five games of the season. His replacement, utility lineman Dave Hilderbrand, will also have the chance to earn a spot in the lineup. Battling for both guard positions will be Parade All-American Martin O'Donnell. O'Donnell redshirted the 2003 season, but was one of the most highly recruited players in the state in 2002.

Preston looks to become a three-year starter at center for the Illini, after helping lead the group to school-record total offense numbers in 2002. Last season, he registered 71 knockdowns and allowed only six pressures on the quarterback all season. Challenging the center position will be junior Kyle Schnettgoecke and redshirt-freshman Ben Amundsen.

Senior Bucky Babcock heads into his fourth season as a starter, but only second at tackle after spending his first two years in the lineup at right guard. However, on his heels is redshirt-freshman James Ryan, who impressed coaches last fall and was named Illinois' scout team offensive player of the year. All-Big Ten performer Sean Bubin graduated, leaving a vacancy at left tackle, which could prove to be a hot battle this spring. The tight race includes sophomore JJ Simmons and redshirt-freshman Jim LaBonte. Simmons gained some valuable playing time on special teams last year.

SIXTH YEAR PLAYERS

In January, the Illinois football program received word that the NCAA had granted a sixth year of eligibility to quarterback Jon Beutjer and defensive end Mike O'Brien. Beutjer is a two-year starter for the Illini, who has passed for 4,108 yards and 31 touchdowns during that time. He missed the final five games of the season in 2003 with a season-ending back injury. In 2002, he led the Big Ten in passing yardage. O'Brien had a career game in the season opener against Missouri, registering a career-high nine tackles, eight solo, and three tackles for loss. Three days later in a practice drill he tore his ACL and had season-ending surgery.

COORDINATING EFFORTS

This season's coaching staff features a pair of new coordinators in Mike Mallory on the offense and Dan Roushar on the defense. Both have previous coordinating experience.

Mallory, who has been on staff for three seasons, moves from linebackers coach to running the defensive side of the ball. He spent four seasons as the coordinator at Northern Illinois and three at Rhode Island. Roushar has had experience in that role on the offensive side of the ball at Northern Illinois, Ball State and Butler.

Turner, who calls the offensive plays on game day, will use Roushar in a complementary role with organizational and motivational duties.

The Illini also added former Northern Illinois defensive coordinator Scott Shafer to the staff, who will take control of the secondary. During his time at NIU, he tutored eight All-MAC players in the secondary and his units ranked first in the conference in interceptions for two straight seasons.

What was youth last season is now experience at tailback. They are one-year older and one-year wiser as the Illini's trio of true-freshmen running backs from a year ago return to become a highlight on offense. E.B. Halsey led the pack with 525 yards and was on pace to break the school's freshman rushing record before a knee injury kept him out of three games. He made his presence felt with 1,285 all-purpose yards, making an impact as a running back, returner and receiver. Illinois also got quality time from Pierre Thomas with 233 yards and two touchdowns until he suffered a season-ending leg injury. The Illini then turned to their third rookie talent in Marcus Mason, who capped off the season with 214 yards.

LINEBACKERS

Despite losing three seniors who were all considered starters at linebacker during some point in their career, the position returns many experienced players, which could make for wide open races at all three spots. Senior Matt Sinclair and junior Antonio Mason return as starters from a year ago, but will be challenged by both experience and youth. Sinclair led the team a year ago with 129 total tackles at the middle linebacker position and was named honorable mention All-Big Ten, but will also be in the mix on the outside. He will be challenged inside by senior Mike Gawelek and redshirt-freshman Joe Mele. Gawelek has seen action in 32 career games, while Mele will be making his first collegiate appearance this fall, but was impressive with defensive and special teams scout team player of the year awards from the coaches.

At the one of the outside positions, Mason returns along with junior Josh Tischer. Mason had 90 tackles, three for loss in 2003, while Tischer played in eight games registering 14 total stops. The graduation of Winston Taylor leaves an opening at the other spot, which could be filled with Sinclair, sophomore Cyrus Garrett or redshirt-freshman J Leman. Garrett saw limited time in five games with three tackles.

EARLY BIRD

True-freshman running back Brock Bolen joins the Illinois football team for spring practice after graduating early from high school and enrolling on college classes in January. Bolen is looking to get a jump start on learning the Ron Turner pro-style offense, one that heavily involves running backs. Bolen was one of Illinois' most highly touted recruits, a Top-100 pick by the Chicago Sun Times. He rushed for 2,087 yards and scored 40 touchdowns as a senior, which earned him the No. 1 national ranking at fullback by recruiting analyst Tom Lemming. He will be challenging junior Jason Davis and redshirt-freshman Brian Grzelakowski for playing time this fall.

WHO'S UNDER CENTER

With the return of senior Jon Beutjer at quarterback, the position looks to be a hot battle for spring practices. The University learned of the granting of Beutjer's sixth year in January making the race for the starting position a four-man battle. Beutjer heads into spring with the most experience, starting 14 games in two years for the Illini. He led the Big Ten in passing in 2002 and was averaging 228.1 yards per contest before a back injury sidelined him for the remainder of the season.

Of the returning quarterbacks, sophomore Chris Pazan saw the most game action behind Beutjer, getting his first collegiate start at "The Big House." In six games, he completed nearly 60 percent of his passes, averaging 85.2 yards a game in two starts.

man Brad Bower will also be in the thick of the competition for the starting job. Brasic played in one game, attempting only one pass against Illinois State. The staff will see Bower in action running the Illinois offense this spring after watching him take on the roles of opponents last season on the scout team. Bower passed for 2,886 yards and 48 touchdowns as a senior at Hinsdale Central in 2002.

THE COVERING ILLINI

The defensive secondary will feature young players, who also have experience on their side. Both cornerback positions have returning starters, but are sophomores. True-sophomore Alan Ball got on the job training last year as he started five games and played in seven for the Illini. He recorded 44 tackles in his rookie season, including a career-high 11 at Iowa. On the other side, third-year sophomore Shariff Abdullah returns after five starts in 2003. Along with his 31 tackles, he recorded a tackle-for-loss and two passes broken up. The two will be pushed by seniors Taman Jordan and Jamaal Clark and junior James Cooper.

The dean of the defensive backfield is two-year starting free safety Travis Williams. With 18 starts under his belt, Williams is a candidate for all-star honors. He was third on the team in total tackles and had one of the team's two interceptions. His athleticism is evident with the number of touchdowns scored by Williams. In his career, he has scored three times - interception return, blocked kick and kickoff return. Last season, he also forced and recovered a fumble and recorded a tackle-for-loss. Backing up the free safety position will be junior Kyle Kleckner, who also is in the hunt at strong safety. The three-way battle begins with Kleckner and converted running back Morris Virgil, as well as redshirt-freshman Kevin Mitchell. Kleckner saw action in all 12 games, registering 18 tackles.

THE SPECIAL TEAMERS

Steve Weatherford jumped on the national scene as a punter last season after breaking a 55-year-old school record for punt yardage average with a 44.3 yards per punt mark. He ranked second in the Big Ten and 12th nationally, which earned him honorable mention All-Big Ten honors. He also handled kickoff duties toward the end of the season. On his 14 kickoffs, opposing teams averaged only 17.9 return yards. With the graduation of placekickers John Gockman and JJ Tubbs, Weatherford could be asked to rake on a new special teams role, that of field goal and extra point placekicker. Currently Weatherford is listed atop the Illini depth chart at the position, as well as co-leader at punter along with senior Matt Minnes. Minnes started at punter for four games for the Illini, averaging 43.1 yards for his 15 punts.

MOVING PARTS

One of the Turner's most successful traits is the ability to make position moves that prove beneficial for the team. This offseason is no different as spring practice will feature some new role changes. The defensive secondary will get a couple new faces in running backs turn defensive backs Morris Virgil and James Cooper. Cooper was recruited by the Illini as a DB, but moved to running back to fill depth needs in 2003. Virgil began to take a look at the defensive side of the ball toward the end of last season and will make that move permanent this spring. Cooper will be challenging sophomore Alan Ball for time at cornerback, while Virgil looks to be contender for a starting role at strong safety.

DaJuan Warren decided to follow in the footsteps of other successful quarterbacks turn wide receiver, Walter Young and Mark Kornfeld, as the 6-5, 200-pound youngster looks to make an impact at receiver. Recruited as a quarterback, Warren asked to be moved to receiver midway through the season and became a valuable target for scout team quarterbacks during his redshirt season. Warren will be in the hunt for playing time with senior Ade Adeyemo and sophomore Lonnie Hurst.

Coaches saw something in redshirt-freshman defensive tackle Chris Norwell in a brief time that had him playing on the defensive scout team. Norwell came in as a tight end, moved to offensive tackle and then again to the defensive line, to take advantage of his aggressive demeanor. He will have the opportunity this spring to vie for a role at tackle, along with senior Mike Maloney and junior Brian Schaefering.

RECOVERING ILLINI

In 2003, the Illinois football team had an unprecedented 12 in-season surgeries, which affected the loss of 17 players for a total 75 missed games. Among those impact players lost for the season were defensive linemen Mike O'Brien and Brian Schaefering. Both were expected to be starters on the line with O'Brien playing one game, against Missouri recording nine tackles and three for loss, before an ACL tear ended his year. Schaefering had a shoulder injury which kept him out the entire season. The two will return for the 2004 season.

Six games into the season, Illini starting quarterback Jon Beutjer and left guard Bryan Koch both discovered their seasons were over when they suffered back injuries against Michigan State. The two were absent for five contests.

In the course of one game, Illinois lost both starting receivers to injuries as junior Kelvin Hayden and Lonnie Hurst went down against Minnesota. Hurst broke his leg and was out the remainder of the year and Hayden missed two games with an ankle sprain and returned for the finale. One of the key contributors at receiver after losing the two was Ade Adeyemo, who missed four games earlier in the season with a rib injury suffered at the Rose Bowl against UCLA.

The running backs were also not immune to the injury bug as freshman phenom E.B. Halsey's knee sprain removed him from three games, while he was on pace to break the school's freshman rushing record. Replacing Halsey was freshman Pierre Thomas, who one game later tore muscles in his calf ending his rookie season. The Illini then turned to a third tailback in freshman Marcus Mason. Senior fullback Carey Davis defied all odds when he returned to play just four days after a knee scope, but an infection kept him out three weeks.

THE SCHEDULE

For the first time in school history, the Illinois football team will host seven home games for the 2004 season. Despite having a homefield advantage, the Illini will have to take on eight teams that went to bowl games a year ago. In 2003, Illinois' schedule featured 10 bowl teams and this upcoming season doesn't seem to ease the difficulty. Seven of Illinois' eight Big Ten opponents were bowl-bound a year ago, along with non-conference foe UCLA.

Illinois does however open the season with four consecutive home contests with the season opener against Florida A&M, followed by UCLA, Western Michigan and Purdue in the conference opener. The squad also plays host to the Michigan Wolverines, Iowa Hawkeyes and Indiana Hoosiers.

RON TURNER

Head Football Coach • Pacific, '77 • Eighth Season

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

As Illinois head football coach Ron Turner enters his eighth year at the helm of the program, he looks to continue to build a program that just three years ago enjoyed an outright Big Ten Championship. Turner has engineered offenses that have broken school records and have the Illini among the top scorers in the country. During his tenure, the Illinois offense has posted the best total yards numbers in consecutive years (2001 and 2002), recorded more points than any other Illini team on two occasions (1999 and 2001) and passed for over 3,000 yards twice (2001 and 2002). Look at the all-time rushers in school history and you will find three of the top-five from the Turner era. Just two years ago, the Illini bid farewell to the greatest receiving corp the program has seen with four players making NFL rosters in 2003.

The 2002 offense set a new school mark for total offense, averaging 446.3 yards per game, which also ranked ninth nationally. Turner's high-powered offenses now rank in three of the school's top-five spots.

Quarterback Jon Beutjer led the conference in passing and the team held the top spot as well for the second straight year. Illinois fans saw the compilation of probably the greatest wide receiving corp in school history as Brandon Lloyd, Walter Young, Aaron Moorehead and Greg Lewis accounted for 57 touchdowns and over 7,700 receiving yards during their four years. At least three of the four rank on every career receiving record list and all four are on NFL rosters.

Not to leave out the rushing game, the Turner era has produced three of the best running backs in school history. In 2002, Antoino Harris capped his career with a 178-yard performance to break the single-season record. He also moved to second on the career list, behind only Robert Holcombe who set the career mark in 1997. A 2001 graduate, Rocky Harvey ranks fifth on that list.

The championship run in 2001 marked many firsts for the Illini. It was the first outright Big Ten title for Illinois in 18 years and the team's first-ever berth in the Bowl Championship Series. The 10-win season was only the fourth for an Illini squad in its storied history. For his efforts, Turner was unanimously named the 2001 Big Ten Coach of the Year. He also was a finalist for the Eddie Robinson, Bear Bryant and the AFCA Coach of the Year awards. Illinois' No. 7 ranking in both the Associated Press and coaches' poll at the end of the regular season was the highest for an Illini squad since 1990. The team finished No. 12 in both final polls.

Considered one of the game's great offensive minds, in 2001 Turner once again led his Illini to the highest scoring offense in school history, scoring 390 points for an average of 32.5 points per contestant. In 1999, Illinois scored 388 to break the previous scoring record set in 1982.

Turner is also known for his development of quarterbacks and his most recent protege, Kurt Kittner, benefited from his tutoring. Kittner was a Johnny Unitas Award finalist and a Davey O'Brien Award semifinalist. He became only the sixth Illinois quarterback to pass for over 3,000 yards in a season and with the win over Northwestern in 2001, he became the winningest quarterback in school history (24-15). He set the school record for touchdown passes in a career with 70 and broke his own single-season record of 24 set in 1999 with 27 in 2001.

Kittner also became one in a long line of successful Turner-coached quarterbacks to head to the NFL. Others on that prestigious list are: Jeff Garcia, Erik Kramer, Jim Harbaugh, Steve Stenstrom, Sean Salisbury, Rodney Peete, Bucky Richardson, Sandy Schwab, John Congemi and Dave Kreig.

During Turner's tenure, the Illini have been very successful in the NFL draft, with at least one player selected in each of his six seasons. In 2003, the Illini broke school records with five players taken in the

OFFENSIVE PRODUCTION UNDER TURNER

TOTAL OFFENSE

In 2002, the Illini topped the 5,000-yard total offense mark for only the second time in school history with 5,356, breaking the school record of 5,041 set in 2001. Turner has put together three of the best offensive years in school history, ranking first, second and fourth.

SCORING OFFENSE

Turner is also known for his ability to score, with his offenses ranked among the best in the nation each year. In four of the past five seasons, the Illinois scoring output has ranked in the school's Top-10. In 1999, Illinois broke the school record, scoring 388 points, only to set a new record in 2001 with 390 points. The Illini have scored 25 points or more in 35 of Turner's 81 games as head coach, including 13 games with 40 or more.

PASSING OFFENSE

Touted as a highly respected quarterbacks coach, Turner has produced the conference's best signal callers two of the past three seasons. Kurt Kittner led the Big Ten in passing 2001 with 271.3 yards per game, while Jon Beutjer was the conference's passing leader with 228.3 yards per contest in 2002. Illinois' 3,000-yard passing season in 2002 was only the ninth in school history and second-highest total output for an Illini squad. The 2002 and 2001 seasons rank fourth and fifth in the passing yards per game list.

RUSHING OFFENSE

Although the Illinois passing offense often overshadows the running game, three running backs from the Turner era rank on the school's Top-5 career list.

WIDE RECEIVERS

Never in Illinois history has a group of receivers dominated the Illinois record books, with three players from a single year ranking in every career record. In 1996 and 1985 the Illini had two players in the Top-10 of each list, but the 2002 squad broke the mark, adding a third.

draft. Cornerback Eugene Wilson became the highest player drafted since 1996 when he was selected as the 36th pick. Receiver Brandon Lloyd went in the fourth round, followed by offensive linemen Tony Pashos and David Diehl in the fifth and WR Walter Young in the seventh. In 1998, Robert Holcombe was taken in the second round by the St. Louis Rams, while offensive lineman J.P. Machado was a sixth-round pick for the New York Jets in 1999. In both 2000 and '01, two players went in the April draft, placekicker Neil Rackers and linebacker Danny Clark in 2000 and offensive tackle Marques Sullivan and fullback Jameel Cook in 2001. Kittner was the sole selection in 2002 as an Atlanta Falcons fifth-rounder. In addition to players drafted, many former Illini have signed free agent contracts to play professionally.

Currently 21 Illinois players from the Turner era are on NFL rosters. LB Danny Clark, FB Jameel Cook, TE Matt Cushing, OL Dave Diehl, RB Antoineo Harris, LS Nathan Hodel, RB Robert Holcombe, S Bobby Jackson, QB Kurt Kittner, WR Greg Lewis, WR Brandon Lloyd, OL J.P. Machado, OL Brandon Moore, WR Aaron Moorehead, OL Tony Pashos, PK Neil Rackers, OL Marques Sullivan, DE Fred Wakefield, CB Eugene Wilson, LB Michael Young and WR Walter Young.

Turner has also been tabbed as one of the best coaches for turning under-recruited players into All-Big Ten selections (by Lindy's in 2001). In his five seasons, Turner has boasted 49 All-Big Ten selections (first, second-team and honorable mention), including first-teamers DE Fred Wakefield in 2000, CB Eugene Wilson, OL Tony Pashos and OL Jay Kulaga in 2001 and Pashos again in 2002. Turner had a record number of all-conference picks after the championship in 2001 with 13.

Following the 2001 season, junior cornerback Eugene Wilson was named to many All-American teams (Playboy, Football News, Sporting News and CNNSI.com) after leading the nation in passes broken up and intercepting six. Wakefield, OL Marques Sullivan and Kittner earned Football News honorable mention All-American honors in 2000 and Sullivan garnered third-team All-America accolades from the Football Writers.

The 1999 season was the breakthrough year for the Illini as the Turner-led Illini produced an 8-4 overall record with a 4-4 Big Ten Conference mark. It was the school's first winning season and bowl appearance since 1994. Turner finished fourth in the Associated Press Coach of the Year voting that season. The Illini's 63 points scored in the lop-sided 63-21 victory over Virginia in the Micronpc.com Bowl were the fourth-most ever scored by a college team in NCAA bowl history. During that game, the squad shattered 22 Illinois and Micronpc.com Bowl records.

With wins at Michigan and Ohio State in 1999, Turner led the first team since 1952 (Michigan St.) to wins at "The Big House" and "The Horseshoe" in the same season.

As on the field, the Illinois program has had a steady turnaround in all facets of its football operation, including the creation of innovative ideas such as the "Camp Rantoul" two-week training camp at the former Chanute Air Base in nearby Rantoul. The Illini also have seen dramatic improvements in the overall well-being of the football student-athlete under Turner, ranging from an increased emphasis on strength and conditioning, nutrition, academic services, time management and gambling and drug awareness programs all designed to create a positive atmosphere for the Illinois football student-athletes.

The academic standards also have been raised by Turner. Prior to the 1997 season, the cumulative team GPA for the Illini was a 2.19 which has since improved to a 2.67. Turner has placed 64 players on the Academic All-Big Ten team in the past six years, while also boasting three GTE/CoSIDA Academic All-Americans, first-teamer Josh Whitman and on the second-team, Fred Wakefield, in both 1999 and 2000 and Tony Pashos in 2001 and 2002. Whitman represented the school at the College Football Hall of Fame banquet in New York speaking on behalf of 16 scholar-athlete award winners. Offensive lineman Tony Pashos also garnered academic all-district honors in 2002.

Although only 50 years old, Turner is a seasoned coaching veteran, spending 20-plus seasons in the collegiate ranks and four years as the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach of the National Football League's Chicago Bears.

Turner became the 21st head coach in Illinois football history on Dec. 2, 1996 and recently signed a contract extension that keeps him in Champaign through January of 2007.

THE CHICAGO BEARS

In four seasons working with the Chicago Bears, Turner coordinated an offense that improved every season, breaking the club record for passing yards with 233 yards per game in 1995 and producing a 1,000-yard receiver and rusher in the same season. The diversity of the Turner offense in Chicago found success under four different quarterbacks in Jim Harbaugh (1993), Steve Walsh (1994), Erik Kramer (1995) and Dave Krieg (1996). In 1994, the Bears led the NFC Central Division for much of the regular season and defeated division rival Minnesota, 35-18, in a first-round playoff game.

TURNER'S SUCCESS AT ILLINOIS

- In 2003, Ron Turner recorded his 32nd career win with the Illini. He becomes the only the sixth coach to win 30 or more games in their coaching career and with 32, has the fourth-most of any coach in school history.

SAN JOSE STATE

The Martinez, Calif., native entered the professional ranks in 1993 after a long and successful college coaching ledger. In 1992, Turner was named head coach at San Jose State. In just one season, Turner led a remarkable turnaround at SJSU, leading the Spartans to a 7-4 record and a second-place finish in the Big West Conference. Turner guided San Jose State to its best record in six years and directed a potent offense that churned out 400 yards per game while averaging 30 points per contest, good for 15th in the nation.

THE ASSISTANT COACH

A proven offensive teacher and tenacious recruiter, Turner spent the previous 16 years as an assistant at the major college level. He earned the San Jose State post after coordinating the Stanford offense for three seasons under Dennis Green. Turner began his coaching career as a graduate assistant coach at the University of Pacific before becoming the receivers coach at the University of Arizona, a post he held for two seasons (1978-79).

After coaching the Arizona running backs in 1980, Turner joined Green at Northwestern University in 1981 where he spent two seasons as quarterbacks/receivers coach. At Northwestern, Turner helped turn the Wildcat offense into one of the most exciting in the Big Ten, tutoring NU quarterback Sandy Schwab to several school and Big Ten records. As an assistant at Northwestern, Turner also recruited all-time NU punt and kickoff return leader Steve Tasker, who went on to a long career in the NFL.

In 1983, Turner became the quarterbacks coach at the University of Pittsburgh, working with Panther QB John Congemi for two seasons. He joined the Ted Tollner staff at Southern California in 1985 in a similar role before he was elevated to offensive coordinator in 1986, coaching 1988 Heisman Trophy runner-up Rodney Peete.

In 1987, new head coach Larry Smith retained Turner on the USC staff as receivers coach as the Trojans romped to the Pac 10 Conference title. The following season, Turner moved to Texas A&M University as the quarterbacks coach before moving to Stanford University in 1989. With the 2002 Sugar Bowl appearance, Turner has been a part of nine bowl teams, including the 1988 Rose Bowl team and the 1991 Stanford Aloha Bowl squad.

THE ATHLETE

As a player, Turner was a second-team junior college All-American wide receiver at Diablo Valley Community College. He earned a scholarship to the University of Pacific and led the Tigers in receiving in 1975 and 1976, catching 40 passes for 666 yards (16.7 avg.) and three touchdowns. The following year, Turner began his coaching career at his alma mater.

THE PERSONAL FILES

Turner's older brother, Norv, is in his first season as the head coach for the Oakland Raiders. Turner and his wife, Wendy, are extremely active in the Champaign community and reside in Champaign with their four children, sons Morgan and Cameron and daughters Cally and Madison.

HARRY HIESTAND

Assistant Head Coach/Offensive Line
East Stroudsburg, 1983
Eighth Season

For the past seven seasons, Harry Hiestand has served as offensive line coach in Ron Turner's system and is entering his fifth as assistant head coach.

During his tenure, Hiestand has produced

11 All-Big Ten selections on the offensive line. Every senior starting offensive lineman since Hiestand's arrival has been signed to an NFL contract for at least a season and currently four are on pro rosters.

In 2002, Illinois marched out one of the nation's most balanced offensive attacks thanks in large part to Hiestand's offensive front. Illinois surpassed 5,300 yards in total offense for the first time in school history. Seniors Tony Pashos and Dave Diehl each earned All-Big Ten accolades, and were fifth-round picks in the 2003 NFL Draft.

In 2001, Hiestand tutored a pair of linemen to first team All-Big Ten accolades. Both Jay Kulaga and Pashos were named to the Big Ten's first team by the coaches and media, while senior center Luke Butkus was a second-team selection. Illinois topped the 5,000-yard total offense mark for the first time in school history.

In 2000, Marques Sullivan and Ray Redziniak earned second-team All-Big Ten honors for the second straight year.

In 1999, Hiestand's line led Illinois to the second highest scoring offense in school history with 388 points scored in 12 games. Sullivan and Redziniak earned second-team All-Big Ten honors.

Hiestand joined Ron Turner's staff after a three-year stint as offensive line coach at Missouri. With the Tigers, Hiestand helped UM to a No. 9 national ranking in rushing at 250.7 yards per game in 1996. In that same year, three of Hiestand's offensive lineman garnered All-Big 12 honors. Hiestand came to Missouri after spending five years as offensive line coach at the University of Cincinnati. He served as run game coordinator with the Bearcats in 1992 and offensive coordinator in 1993.

Prior to Cincinnati, Hiestand was an offensive line coach at Toledo (1988), graduate assistant coach at Southern California (1987) and tight ends and assistant line coach at Penn (1986). He began his coaching career at his alma mater, East Stroudsburg University, after an injury ended his playing days. Hiestand has been a part of league championship teams at five of his seven stops, at East Stroudsburg (1982-83), Penn (1986), USC (1987), Cincinnati (1993) and Illinois (2001). He was on the Trojan staff at the 1988 Rose Bowl.

A native of Malvern, Penn., Hiestand played offensive guard for two seasons at Springfield College before spending a season at East Stroudsburg. Hiestand earned his bachelor of science degree in health and physical education from East Stroudsburg in 1983. He and his wife, Terri, have three sons, Michael, Matthew and Mark and one daughter, Sarah.

MIKE MALLORY

Defensive Coordinator/Linebackers
Michigan, 1985
Fourth Season

A member of one of the most respected coaching families in college football, Mike Mallory just completed his third year on the Fighting Illini coaching staff. The 2004 season brings a promotion as the team's defensive coordinator. Last season, Mallory coached linebackers after spending the previous two years with the safeties. The move was a natural one, giving him a chance to work with the position that earned him All-America honors as a player at Michigan.

The three starting linebackers in 2003 combined for 327 total tackles (27.3 per game) with middle linebacker Matt Sinclair leading the defense. Sinclair garnered honorable mention All-Big Ten honors for his season.

In his second season as safeties coach in 2002, Mallory showed his coaching prowess after guiding a young group of safeties to a successful season despite battling through a rash of injuries. Despite Illinois' inexperience at the position, the Illini safeties thrived, picking off four passes and recovering three fumbles.

In 2001, Mallory worked with the senior safety duo of Bobby Jackson and Muhammad Abdullah, both earning All-Big Ten honors. Jackson and Abdullah responded to a new defensive scheme that allowed them to challenge the run (10 TFL and three sacks combined) and drop back in pass coverage (5 interceptions and 20 passes broken up).

Mallory, son of former Indiana, Colorado, Northern Illinois and Miami (OH) head coach Bill Mallory, came to Illinois following one season as linebackers coach with the Maryland Terrapins. Prior to his stint at Maryland, Mallory was the defensive coordinator and linebackers coach at Northern Illinois. In 1999, he guided the Huskies to a 5-6 record, their best since 1992, while posting the Mid-American Conference's third-best pass efficiency defense.

In addition to defensive coordinator experience at NIU, Mallory also held the same position at the University of Rhode Island from 1993-95. With 17 years of experience in college coaching, Mallory began his career as a graduate assistant at Indiana in 1986-87 assisting in the Hoosiers back-to-back bowl appearances. He then went on to Kent State where he was the linebackers and defensive line coach for three seasons. In 1991, Mallory became the linebackers coach at Eastern Illinois.

Mallory was a four-year letterwinner at linebacker for the University of Michigan from 1982-85, where he played in four bowl games including the 1983 Rose Bowl and 1986 Fiesta Bowl. He was also a two-year captain, the 1984 team MVP and 1985 Butkus Award finalist. He graduated from Michigan in 1985 with a bachelor's degree in sports administration and began pursuing graduate work in sports management at Indiana University in 1986-87.

Mallory is a graduate of Delkalb High School in Illinois, where he was an all-state performer in 1980.

Mallory and his wife, Kim, have a daughter, Kathryn and a son, William Michael.

DAN ROUSHAR

Offensive Coordinator/Running Backs
Northern Illinois, 1985
Second Season

Dan Roushar enters his second year with the Fighting Illini and this season has a new title of offensive coordinator. Roushar will continue to handle running back coaching duties as well as additional organizational responsibilities with the offense. He comes to Illinois after spending six years as offensive coordinator at Northern Illinois University.

In 2003, he tutored a trio of true-freshman tailbacks, starting each of the three throughout the season. E.B. Halsey became the first running back in school history to top the 100-yard mark in his first collegiate game when he rushed for 139 yards against Missouri and led the team in yardage. He was followed by Pierre Thomas with 233 and Marcus Mason with 214.

Roushar has the daunting task of carrying on a running back tradition, which includes three tailbacks during the Turner era, who rank in the school's all-time top-five. Robert Holcombe (1994-97) is Illinois' leader, followed by the single-season rushing leader and second in career yards, Antoino Harris (1999-2002) and ranked fifth is Rocky Harvey (1998-2001).

Roushar led the Huskies, offense to new heights during his years, as it set a school record for total yards in 2000, ranked 12th nationally in rushing offense with 228.1 yards per game and set team rushing records in 2002 with 2,409 yards. NIU had four 1,000-yard rushers in the past four season under Roushar: William Andrews in 1999 (1,127 yards), Thomas Hammock in 2000-01 (1,083 and 1,096), and Michael Turner, the nation's second-leading rusher in 2002, with 1,915 yards.

Last season began Roushar's second stint with the Illini. Prior to his time at NIU, Roushar coached quarterbacks in 1995, and offensive tackles and tight ends in 1996 under Lou Tepper.

Roushar began his career with a six-year tenure at Butler, where he coached running backs for three years before being promoted to offensive coordinator, a position he held for three years. During his time at Butler, the Bulldogs compiled a 42-17-4 record, winning five conference titles and making two Division II playoff appearances.

Roushar then coached at Rhode Island in 1993, where he worked on the opposite side of the ball from Illinois defensive coordinator coach Mike Mallory. He moved on to serve as offensive coordinator at Ball State in 1994. Roushar's offense at BSU featured 1,000-yard rusher Tony Nibbs (1,210) and threw a school-record 18 touchdown passes.

Roushar is a 1985 graduate of Northern Illinois, with a bachelor of science degree in physical education. He was a two-time letter-winner under Hall of Fame coach Bill Mallory. Roushar is married to the former Patti Cahill of Sutton, Mass., and the couple has three daughters Marissa, Mallory and Maura.

ROBERT JACKSON

Wide Receivers/Recruiting Coordinator
Northern Illinois, 1974
Sixth Season

Robert Jackson begins his sixth year as receivers coach for the Illini and fourth as recruiting coordinator in 2004.

For the fifth consecutive year, Jackson's receiving corps hauled in over 2,000 yards receiving.

In 2002, the receivers caught an impressive 21 touchdowns and topped the 3,000-yard mark. Nine times Illinois receivers had 100+ yard games, led by All-Big Ten pass catcher Brandon Lloyd who had five. Senior Walter Young had two 100+ yard days including back-to-back games at Wisconsin and vs. eventual national champion Ohio State. The Illini receivers were once again led by the duo of Brandon Lloyd and Walter Young. Lloyd racked up his second consecutive 1,000 yard season, catching 65 passes for 1,010 yards and nine scores, while Young added 822 yards on 56 catches with six touchdowns. The most productive receiving corp to ever play at Illinois, Lloyd and Young were drafted in 2003 and Aaron Moorehead and Greg Lewis signed free agent contracts, marking four from the 2002 class with a spot on an NFL roster.

In 2001, Illinois' duo of sophomore Lloyd and junior Young combined for over 160 yards per game and 12 catches per contest. Lloyd earned second-team All-Big Ten honors after a regular season that saw six 100-yard performances. The mark tied a school record set by David Williams in 1985. Young racked up over 100 yards in the final three games, producing a dual threat to defenses.

Jackson also transformed Lewis and Moorehead, former walk-ons, into two of the team's most reliable receivers. In 2000, Lewis was the leading receiver on an offense that topped the 2,300-yard mark.

In 1999, under Jackson's tutelage, senior Michael Dean closed out his Illini career with 608 yards and four touchdown receptions, while then-freshman Lloyd produced a record-breaking debut campaign with 511 yards and two TD catches, setting a new freshman receiving yards mark in the process. The Fighting Illini receivers smashed 1998's totals, posting 2,805 yards and 26 touchdown receptions, while averaging 233.8 yards per contest.

Prior to coming to Illinois, Jackson spent two seasons as Director of Football Operations at Oregon State. Joining the OSU staff in 1991, Jackson started as receivers coach from 1992-97 before becoming assistant head coach and receivers coach in 1996-97. In his eight years with the Beavers, Jackson served as academic coordinator for the football program and helped deliver a team that led the nation in graduation rates in 1994 (94.6 percent) with 25 Academic All-Pac 10 selections. During his last two seasons at Oregon State, Jackson monitored the football budget, coordinated all support areas related to OSU football, assisted in the certification process for incoming student-athletes, managed building administration and scheduled all football trips and weekends.

The Harvey, Ill., native has been renowned for his longtime Illinois prep and college career. A highly successful prep coach at Thornwood High School from 1974-86, Jackson served as head football coach and baseball coach before moving to Northern Illinois as receivers coach from 1986-91. While at his alma mater, Jackson helped the Huskies rank among the nation's leading offensive teams, posting a 9-2 record in 1989 and recruited former NCAA record-holder QB Stacey Robinson.

Jackson played several sports at Thronton Township High School and served as senior class president. He was a four-year letterwinner at Northern Illinois in baseball, ranking among the nation's leading hitters as a junior and earning all-conference and All-NCAA tournament honors. He received his bachelor's degree from NIU in 1974.

Jackson and his wife, JoAnn, reside in Urbana. They are the parents of former Illinois defensive backs Marc and Bobby.

GREG MCMAHON

Tight Ends/Special Teams
Eastern Illinois, 1983
13th Season

The Dean of Illini coaches, Greg McMahon enters his 13th year on the Illinois sidelines and seventh coaching the special teams and tight ends.

Experience breeds success and the Illinois special teams have had plenty of success in McMahon's tenure. That is evident by the amount of Illinois record holders that have come from McMahon's tutelage, including the single-season punt average record holder Steve Weatherford, the school's all-time punting leader in every category, Steve Fitts, the single-season and single-game scoring leader Neil Rackers, the all-time punt return yardage leader, Eugene Wilson and the most consecutive extra points made streak by Peter Christofilakos (69).

In addition to the outstanding careers of the special teamers over the last six years there are the number of crowd-pleasing plays that have become memorable. Just in 2002 alone, the Illini tied No. 1 Ohio State with a last-minute 48-yard field goal by John Gockman, got on the board early with a 100-yard kickoff return for touchdown by Travis Williams, Wilson's 70-yard punt return for touchdown at USM and Brian Brosnan's blocked punt recovered by Kendrick Jones in the endzone against Arkansas State. In 2003, the Illini blocked three kicks, including one that was returned 66 yards for the score by Travis Williams (blocked by Derrick Strong). Running back E.B. Halsey scored the second special teams touchdown of the year with a 41-yard punt return against Purdue.

Since McMahon took over the special team duties in 1997, Illini kickers have averaged over 12 field goals made per season and connected on an impressive 188-of-191 extra points (.984). Fitts, Rackers and Christofilakos were regulars on All-Big Ten teams as well as semifinalists for national honors, Ray Guy Award and Lou Groza Award. In addition to getting off great kicks, the Illini have become known for blocking their share. Illinois blocked seven kicks in 2001, four by defensive end Terrell Washington, and followed that up with four blocks in 2002.

Illini special teamers have also had success in the pros as well. In 2001, Rackers was drafted by the Cincinnati Bengals and long snappers Nathan Hodel (Arizona) and Mike Malczyk (N.Y. Giants) were signed as free agents.

While also great blockers, Illinois' tight ends have also flourished in the passing game. Over the last six seasons, the position has accounted for an average of 20 catches, 200 yards and 3 touchdowns a year. In 1999, Josh Whitman and Brian Hodges combined for 29 receptions, 295 yards and five TDs. Whitman received honorable mention All-Big Ten honors and was signed by the San Diego Chargers in 2001. He joined former Illini tight ends Matt Cushing (Pittsburgh) and Ken Dilger (Tampa Bay) in the NFL.

McMahon stresses excellence off the field as well. Whitman earned first-team GTE/CoSIDA Academic All-American honors twice with a near-perfect 3.97 GPA in Illinois' nationally ranked business school and delivered the scholar-athlete speech at the College Football Foundation's Hall of Fame dinner. Placekicker JJ Tubbs held the highest GPA of any male athlete in his class during his entire career, earning Academic All-Big Ten honors four straight years.

McMahon came to Illinois in 1992 from Nevada-Las Vegas, where he spent two seasons coaching offensive tackles and tight ends. McMahon also spent time at Valdosta, Southern Illinois, North Alabama and Minnesota.

A native of Rantoul, the home of the Illinois football training camp, McMahon earned his bachelor's degree in psychology from Eastern Illinois in 1983 after playing four seasons as a defensive back for the Panthers. As a player, McMahon was a part of the 1978 NCAA Division II national championship EIU squad and 1980 NCAA runner-up.

McMahon and his wife, Linda, have three children, sons Drew, who is a member of the U of I football team, and Sam and a daughter, Lisa. The McMahon's reside in Champaign.

DAN O'DELL

Quarterbacks
San Jose State, 1998
Fourth Season

Dan O'Dell begins his fourth season as quarterbacks coach at the University of Illinois, following three years spent with the Illini as a graduate assistant.

Last season, three quarterbacks combined for 2,756 passing yards. O'Dell's signal callers have now topped the 2,500-yard mark for each of his three years with the Illini.

In 2002, Illinois' passing attack ranked No. 1 in the Big Ten at a 282.3 ypg clip. Junior quarterback Jon Beutjer ranked No. 1 in the Big Ten with 228.3 passing yards per game, while throwing for 2,511 yards. His 21 touchdown passes rank fourth in Illinois single-season history, while his 59 percent completion percentage was second among Big Ten quarterbacks.

In 2001, the Illinois passing attack was one of the most prolific in school history under O'Dell thanks to his efforts with All-Big Ten and All-American quarterback Kurt Kittner. Kittner passed for a career high 3,256 yards, while adding 27 touchdowns. Kittner also became Illinois' all-time leader in touchdown passes with 70 and the winningest QB in school history with 24 victories. In addition to working with Kittner, O'Dell has also been instrumental in the development of the Illinois back-up quarterbacks including Jon Beutjer who led the Big Ten Conference in passing last season.

As a graduate assistant, O'Dell spent two years working with the highly touted Fighting Illini offensive line, including the record setting 1999 season when the line led the team to the highest scoring offense in school history and in 2000 when the line held defenses to only 20 sacks, the 17th lowest in the country.

In 1998, O'Dell worked as a graduate assistant in football recruiting and operations, earning his masters degree in education in 2001. O'Dell earned his B.S. in psychology from San Jose State in May of '98 after concluding a five-year career as quarterback for the Spartans.

O'Dell is a native of Martinez, Calif., and graduated from Alhambra High School in 1993, where he was a standout in football, basketball and baseball. O'Dell was a four-year letterwinner at San Jose State. His senior season, he completed 48 percent of his passes, which included 13 touchdowns and six touchdowns rushing in nine games.

During his six weeks as the starting quarterback, O'Dell was named the Western Athletic Conference Offensive Player of the Week twice, throwing five touchdown passes and running for one TD in a 55-48 overtime victory in the season finale against UNLV.

After starting the season 0-6, the Spartans were 4-2 with O'Dell as the starter, defeating UTEP, Air Force, Hawaii and UNLV.

Following the season, O'Dell was voted offensive captain for the 1997 season by his teammates.

O'Dell and his wife, Marni, have a son, Tobin and the couple resides in Champaign.

SCOTT SHAFER

Secondary
Baldwin-Wallace, 1990
First Season

Scott Shafer makes only his fourth stop in a 12-year coaching career, as he enters his first season as Illinois' secondary coach. Shafer joins the Illini staff after an eight-year stint at Northern Illinois under Joe Novak. He began at NIU as the secondary coach, moving up to fill the defensive coordinator position when left vacated by Illinois' Mike Mallory in 2000. He is reunited with Mallory, whom he worked with at both Northern Illinois and Rhode Island from 1993-95. Yet another connection to the family, Coach Bill Mallory gave Shafer his first start as a graduate assistant coach at Indiana in 1991-92.

During his time as the NIU coordinator, the Huskies tallied a record of 30-16, including a 10-win season in 2003, the school's first since 1983. His defense led the Mid-American Conference in interceptions with 23 and was in the top-three in takeaways, scoring defense, rush defense and pass efficiency defense. The Huskies boasted three wins over BCS Conference teams (Maryland, Alabama and Iowa State), allowing an average of only 15.0 points a game against those opponents.

NIU won a share of the MAC-West Conference title in both 2001 and 2002 and during the 2002 season, the defense was No. 1 in the conference rankings in interceptions, takeaways, scoring defense, run defense and sacks. While at NIU, Shafer produced eight All-MAC performers in the secondary.

Shafer is a 1990 graduate of Baldwin-Wallace College where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in education and went on to receive a master of science degree in education from Indiana in 1992. Shafer was the team's MVP in 1987 playing quarterback, while also ranked 17th nationally in passing efficiency with a 137.3 rating.

TOMMY THIGPEN

Linebackers
North Carolina, 1994
Second Season

Tommy Thigpen begins his second year with the Illinois staff making the move to linebackers coach for the 2004 season. He came to Illinois in 2003 as cornerbacks coach, after two years at Bowling Green. Thigpen coached cornerbacks and was special teams coordinator at BGSU in 2002.

Thigpen led one of the Mid-American Conference's top defenses, as the Falcons forced 27 turnovers to lead the MAC in turnover margin in 2002. BGSU also finished second in the MAC in pass efficiency defense. Thigpen's special teams also shone, blocking seven punts and a potential game-winning field goal attempt by Western Michigan to preserve the Falcons, early undefeated season.

Prior to his time at Bowling Green, Thigpen coached linebackers at Tennessee State for one season, and spent two years at his alma mater, North Carolina, as a graduate assistant. There he played for and coached with current Illini assistant Donnie Thompson.

Thigpen achieved accolades as a Parade All-American and Virginia Defensive Player of the Year at Potomac High School in Dumfries, Va. He was a three-time All-ACC performer for North Carolina and earned All-America honors as a senior at UNC. DONNIE THOMPSON

Defensive Line
Connecticut, 1975
Fourth Season

Donnie Thompson joined the University of Illinois coaching staff in 2001 to coach the defensive line, following 12 years with the North Carolina Tar Heels.

In 2001, his first with the Illini, the defensive front allowed just 147 rushing yards per contest, fourth in the Big Ten, an improvement of 84.8 yards a contest from the previous season. In addition to stopping the run, the defensive line showed the ability to get after the quarterback as 10 different defensive linemen recorded sacks. Starting defensive tackle Brandon Moore was named an All-Big Ten selection after registering 41 tackles, eight of which went for loss, and four sacks.

During his time with the Tar Heels, Thompson tutored 15 defensive linemen currently in the NFL, including five first-round draft picks, Ebenezer Ekuban in 1999, Greg Ellis in 1998, Marcus Jones in 1996 and Julius Peppers (No. 2 overall) and Ryan Sims (No. 6 overall) who were drafted in 2002. In 1999, the Tar Heel defense ranked 18th in the nation, second in the ACC and the squad set a new school record for sacks in a season with 53, which led the nation. Thompson aided in seven bowl appearances at North Carolina, with a win over Virginia Tech in the 1997 Gator Bowl. During 1995-97, the Tar Heel's defense ranked in the top-six in total defense.

Thompson began his coaching career at his alma mater, Connecticut, in 1975, working with linebackers and defensive ends. In 1981, Thompson moved to the University of Pittsburgh to coach the defensive line and in his four seasons the Panthers went to the Cotton Bowl in 1983 and the Fiesta Bowl in '84.

Missouri22
Illinois15

Aug. 30, 2003 - St. Louis, Mo. - 63,576

Despite outgaining Missouri 411-223, the Illinois football team opened the season with a 22-15 loss to the Tigers at the Edward Jones Dome.

Illinois' defense held the Tigers' to just 223 yards of total offense and allowed Missouri's sophomore quarterback Brad Smith to gain just 168 yards.

Illinois scored on its first possession with a 44-yard field goal by John Gockman, the first of three by the Illini senior.

After a Missouri punt, the Illini were forced to punt, but were unable to get the punt off as Missouri's Derrick Ming tackled Illini punter Matt Minnes to give Missouri the ball at the Illinois three-yard line.

Missouri scored on a 14-yard pass from Smith to tight end J.D. McCoy with 5:31 to go in the half to go up 14-3.

A six-yard scoring strike from Beutjer to junior Kelvin Hayden gave Illinois its first lead of the game at 15-14 with 10:36 remaining in the game, but the two-point conversion attempt failed.

Illinois got the ball back on its 10 yard line with 2:03 left and drove to Missouri's 23 yard line, but the drive stalled as a Beutjer pass intended for Melvin Bryant was broken up by Nino Williams.

Sept. 6, 2003 - Champaign, Ill. - 56,304

Jon Beutjer threw four touchdown passes and Travis Williams returned a blocked field goal 66 yards for a score as Illinois defeated Illinois State, 49-22.

Beutjer connected with Mark Kornfeld for a 32-yard score, Kelvin Hayden for a 41-yard TD and Lonnie Hurst for a 30-yarder on successive Illinois drives in the first quarter after Illinois State marched down the field on the opening drive only to fumble at the end zone.

The Redbirds rolled up 511 yards in total offense and Dwayne Smith, who transferred from Illinois before last season, caught 14 passes for 243 yards and two touchdowns, one a 74-yard play.

Tailback Morris Virgil led the Illini with 84 yards on nine carries, one of them 35 yards for a score in the third quarter. Freshman E.B. Halsey ran the ball 20 times for 73 yards.

Illinois built a 31-3 halftime lead after defensive end Derrick Strong blocked a field goal attempt and Williams ran it back for a touchdown as time ran out.

Beutjer's fourth TD pass of the game was a 4-yarder to Brad Haywood with 10:06 remaining. John Gockman kicked two field goals for the

Illinois3

Sept. 13, 2003 - Pasadena, Calif. - 51,118

In its first game at the Rose Bowl since 1984, the Illinois defense was outstanding, limiting UCLA to 204 total yards, including just 94 yards passing. The Illini kept pressure on Bruins quarterback Drew Olson all night, coming away with five sacks and allowing Olson to complete just 35 percent of his passes.

Unfortunately, the Illinois were held without a touchdown for the first time since a 27-0 loss at Penn State in 1998.

Illini quarterback Jon Beutjer was 26-of-42 for 216 yards and running back E.B. Halsey carried the ball 24 times for 76 yards, but Illinois' offense never got on track.

Trailing 6-0, the Orange and Blue got on the board in the third quarter on a 29-yard John Gockman field goal, his sixth of the season. The score was set up by safety Marc Jackson's second career interception, an acrobatic grab at the Illinois 42-yard line. With three quick first downs, the Illini offense was able to march to UCLA's seven yard line, where they were facing a third and two, but was whistled for a delay of game penalty. After the five yard loss, a Beutjer pass intended for Mark Kornfeld fell incomplete and the Illini were forced to settle for Gockman's field goal.

Starting from their own 15 with 3:02 to go, Beutjer led the Illini to the Bruin 29, hitting Kornfeld three times for 30 yards, fullback Jason Davis twice for 15 yards and Halsey once for a five yard pickup. Attempts by Beutjer on first and second down to hit receivers in the end zone were incomplete. On third down, he found Kelvin Hayden for an eight-yard gain to set up a potential game-tying field goal attempt for Gockman.

After timeouts by both teams and an Illini false start penalty that pushed the attempt to 43 yards, Gockman's kick sailed wide left. The Bruins took over and ran out the clock.

Jon Beutjer set a Memorial Stadium record and a career-high passing mark, throwing for 430 yards, but it wasn't enough as the Fighting Illini fell 31-24 to California in their final non-conference game.

Trailing 21-7 at halftime, the Illini started quickly after halftime as Beutjer found wide receiver Kelvin Hayden deep down the middle for a 72-yard scoring strike on the second play of the half. The pass was the longest Illini pass since a 73-yard connection from Johnny Johnson to Jasper Strong in the 1994 Liberty Bowl. Hayden finished with 11 catches for 158 yards, both career highs.

After a California field goal made the score 31-14 with 11:07 to go, the Illini mounted a furious comeback, starting with an eight play, 80-yard drive that ended when Beutjer found running back E.B. Halsey along the sideline for a 29-yard touchdown pass.

After the Illini defense forced a Golden Bear punt, the Illini pulled to within seven on a 34-yard field goal by John Gockman.

On the ensuing kickoff, the Illini recovered an onside kick at the 50-yard line with 1:44 remaining. Facing a fourth and three, Beutjer found wide receiver Lonnie Hurst for six yards to give the Illini the ball at the eight-yard line with 17 seconds left. With no timeouts remaining, 11 seconds ticked off the clock as Beutjer's pass attempt to Mark Kornfeld in the end zone fell incomplete. On the game's final play, Beutjer was sacked as time ran out.

 Sept. 27, 2003 - Champaign, Ill. - 58,495

The return of Illinois' star fullback, Carey Davis was not enough to lift the Illini past Wisconsin, as the Fighting Illini opened the Big Ten season at Memorial Stadium with a 38-20 loss to the Badgers.

Davis, who missed the previous three games with a staph infection, was limited to five touches, rushing twice for 23 yards, catching two passes for seven yards and returning one kick for 12 yards.

Trailing 21-0 in the second quarter, the Illini fought back, closing to 21-10 at the end of the second quarter on a John Gockman field goal followed by an E.B. Halsey 4-yard TD pass from quarterback Jon Beutjer, who finished the day 23-of-41 for 207 yards and one TD.

Halsey added another touchdown, a 4-yard run with 5:14 left in the third quarter. The score was Halsey's first rushing touchdown of his career. The freshman compiled 211 all purpose yards, including a 66-yard kickoff return that led to Gockman's second quarter field goal. Gockman added a 47-yarder in the third quarter.

Halsey's performance was not enough as the Badgers ran 63 times for 307 yards and five TD's.

 Oct. 11, 2003 - Champaign, Ill. - 47,509

Illinois got its running game back on track against the nation's third best run defense, gaining 158 yards on the ground. The Illini's run defense was much improved, allowing the Spartans just 102 yards, but Michigan State handed the Illini their third straight Big Ten loss, 49-14.

Trailing 7-0, Illini quarterback Jon Beutjer led the Illini on a season long, 92-yard drive which ended with a 10-yard touchdown pass from Beutjer to wide receiver Mark Kornfeld.

The game's momentum swayed to the Spartans' side when, after a Michigan State touchdown, a Beutjer interception deep in Illini territory was returned to the two-yard line. After three Illini defensive stops, Tyrell Dortch was able to squeeze into the end zone on fourth down to put the Spartan's ahead 14-7.

Illinois next scored when Chris Pazan connected with E.B. Halsey on a six-yard scoring strike with 1:05 to go in the game. The touchdown was the first of Pazan's career.

Oct. 18, 2003 - Ann Arbor, Mich. - 110,231

Redshirt freshman Chris Pazan made his first career start in Illinois' 56-14 setback at Michigan. Pazan was starting for Jon Beutjer who missed the game due to a back injury.

Pazan finished the game 11-of-23 for 100 yards with one interception. He became the first freshman to start at quarterback for the Illini since teammate Dustin Ward, who started the final game of the 2000 season as a redshirt freshman.

Illinois' Pierre Thomas, a true freshman running back scored the first two touchdowns of his career. The first, a one-yard plunge, capped an Illini drive that covered 81 yards in eight plays on their second possession of the second half.

Thomas' second touchdown was a seven-yard run, which finished an 80-yard drive engineered by senior Dustin Ward. On the drive, Ward was a perfect 4-of-4 for 53 yards, hitting wide receiver Mark Kornfeld with three passes for 44 yards. Ward finished the day 5-for-5 for 63 yards.

Oct. 25, 2003 - Champaign, Ill. - 46,407

Senior quarterback Dustin Ward relieved redshirt freshman Chris Pazan at the start of the second quarter and finished 17-of-32 for 221 yards and one touchdown in Illinois' 36-10 Homecoming loss to Minnesota at Memorial Stadium.

Ward connected with senior Carey Davis on a four-yard touchdown toss in the second quarter to pull the Illini to 17-7. After three punts, the Fighting Illini got the ball back and drove to the Gophers' 10-yard line, but the drive ended when a Ward pass was intercepted in the end zone.

In the third quarter, Ward appeared to have his second touchdown pass, a 10-yarder to Mark Kornfeld, but the official's ruled that Kornfeld stepped out of the end zone and the penalty nullified the score. Instead, senior John Gockman kicked a 27-yard field goal.

Freshman Pierre Thomas rushed for 70 yards on 15 carries before leaving the game with a leg injury.

The Illini also lost their two starting receivers, as Kelvin Hayden, after catching three balls for 93 yards, left with an ankle injury and freshman

Lonnie Hurst was knocked out by a leg injury.

Freshman running back Marcus Mason ran for 102 yards on 25 carries and quarterback Dustin Ward threw two touchdown passes, but the Fighting Illini fell 17-14 to Indiana.

Ward's first touchdown toss was the end result of a 49-second drive to close out the first half. On first and goal from the six-yard line, Ward floated a pass to the left side of the end zone which McGoey hauled in for his first touchdown catch of the season.

In the third quarter, Ward found junior wide receiver Ade Adeyemo from 34 yards out to give the Illini a 14-7 lead.

Illinois had a chance to break the game open at the start of the fourth quarter, but a 52-yard punt return for a touchdown by Christian Morton was called back due to a holding penalty. After the penalty, the Illini were held to 27 yards on their next three possessions.

Indiana scored on its' first possession of the game, but was unable to mount any more substantial drives until the fourth quarter.

After an Indiana field goal made the score 14-10, the Illini were forced into two straight three-and-out possessions, with the second one setting up Indiana's game-winning drive that ended with an eight-yard run by quarterback Matt LoVecchio.

The Illini had 24 seconds to try and tie the game, but, after moving to their own 38-yard line following a defensive pass interference call, Ward's final pass was intercepted deep in Indiana's territory as time expired.
